

université PARIS-SACLAY

INDIGENOUS PEOPLES AND THE ARCTIC COUNCIL : PAST AND FUTURE PAR ALONA YEFIMENKO

Indigenous peoples of the Arctic often refer to the establishment of the AEPS and later the Arctic Council and the recognition of Indigenous Peoples as Permanent Participants to the Arctic Council, and with that the establishment of the Arctic Council Indigenous Peoples' The Arctic will face vast challenges in the years to come, requiring all levels of governance to constantly adjust their modes of operation.

vendredi 20 décembre 2013 de 12h à 13h30

Amphi Gérard Mégie

Observatoire de Versailles Saint-Quentin-en-Yvelines

11 boulevard d'Alembert

78280 Guyancourt

The Arctic Council concluded its first round of chairmanships with the conclusion of the Swedish Chairmanship this spring, 16 or so years after its inauguration in Ottawa in 1996. And the chair returned to its initiator, Canada, in May this year. It will then pass to the United States in 2015.

In the last few years, the role (current and future) of observers has attracted more interest and reflection driven in large part by anxieties over the economic development of the Arctic Ocean.

The claim that the European Union is “inextricably linked to the Arctic region” is the most important one – as the Arctic is quite literally enrolled into claims that the EU is an organization that cannot be excluded from Arctic matters.

In light of the growing complexity of the challenges faced by the Arctic region, research organizations have been formed in order to conduct multidisciplinary research and dispense knowledge and expertise on Arctic issues.

Their audiences and participants include policy makers, Arctic residents, students, and social and natural scientists. These networks actively promote co-operative research efforts, education and communications.

INFORMATIONS COMPLÉMENTAIRES

A partir de 12h, nous offrons, dans le hall d'accueil, un menu sandwich à tout personne préalablement inscrite.

N'oubliez pas de réserver votre menu à rsvendredisovsq@uvsq.fr impérativement avant le mardi 17 décembre à 18h, et de nous signaler tout désistement.

Au-delà de cette date, les réservations de sandwiches ne pourront plus être prises en compte; en revanche, vous demeurez les bienvenus pour assister à la conférence et pouvez confirmer votre présence à la même adresse.

> Télécharger le flyer [PDF - 1 Mo]

